

Dr. Jagirdar joined Cambium in December 2017. She is a seasoned professional in clinical research and development with over 14 years of extensive experience in the design and conduct of experimental research studies in an academic environment (Emory University, Atlanta, Ga & Partners Healthcare, Boston Ma) as well as clinical trials in support of new product development and Quality Assurance. Prior to joining Cambium, Dr. Jagirdar managed a high-volume bone marrow transplant research program at Winship Cancer Institute. Dr. Jagirdar completed her medical degree and training in Poland and Antigua and clinical training in Atlanta, Ga. She completed her master's degree in public health, focusing on public health policy and management and received a certificate in emergency management and disaster planning. BA-Boston University, MD-American University of Antigua, MPH-American Public University.